Dear lovers of spaces filled with positive energy,

I love going on walks with my family.

Getting some exercise in the fresh air gives me strength and energy no matter the time of year. There's always something for us to discover with our son in the great outdoors. It could be a brittle branch that we take with us on our journey, berries growing on a bush that are a source of food for the songbirds, or colorful leaves that we collect up and take home to decorate.

While out on a walk one time, I realized that it can be fairly difficult to identify specific types of tree. Of course, we can tell an oak from a chestnut or a maple, or a beech from a birch. Beyond that, though, it starts to become more difficult. Each species and virtually every tree has a story to tell, and they all have their own unique features. This is the reason why many of us have a favorite tree.

The oak is my absolute favorite tree. What connects me to it is my love of resilience. Oaks are full of power and strength. They last centuries and span generations. But although it is resilient, the oak changes over the course of the year – and over the years, too. It's this capability that lends it its strength and inspires me. I don't always find it easy to change habits. But that's how we find the opportunity to discover things anew. After all, a plain white wall in the living room never hurt anyone, that much is true. But imagine soft lavender hues instead. Wouldn't that just bring such a light and summery quality to the space? So I'm giving it a go. And how about ditching the gray carpet in the attic room at long last in favor of wooden flooring? Those warm, light brown tones would really breathe new life into the space.

It doesn't take big, dramatic changes to make us happy. Having the courage to shake things up now and again brings me a fresh perspective. This is a philosophy that we build into each new KRONOTEX collection. Our much-loved classics are paired with a few newcomers that will bring a breath of fresh air to your indoor spaces with their contemporary feel. Our focus in 2025 will be on oak. And rightly so, as there are around 500 species worldwide and it is by far the most popular tree. And if you're wondering about that little attic room – I picked the new Horizon Oak Nature decor from the KRONOTEX EXQUISIT collection. The name serves as a little reminder for me to discover new horizons. Perhaps one of our 25 new oak decors will inspire you to try something new, too? My tip: take the time to go for a walk in the woods. You'll see how you return to your everyday life feeling recharged and refreshed.

Best wishes,

For the foodies

Stoccafisso alla pisana

This traditional and simple Tuscan seafood recipe is a delicious marriage of stockfish – or dried cod – with onions, tomatoes, potatoes, parsley and basil.

Ingredients:

500 g stockfish, soaked in running water
400 g potatoes
200 g tomatoes
100 g white onions
Basil, celery, parsley, garlic and rosemary to taste
½ cup extra virgin olive oil
Salt and pepper for seasoning

Preparation:

Peel and core the tomatoes. Finely chop the onions and brown them in a pan along with the basil, celery, parsley and garlic, before mixing in the tomatoes. Add a little rosemary to taste.

Remove the bones from the stockfish and cut into small pieces. Add to the pan. Cut the skin of the fish into thin strips and add this in too. Season with salt and pepper, add a little water, and leave to simmer for around 1 hour.

While you're waiting, peel and wash the potatoes and cut them into small cubes. Add the potatoes to the stockfish after 30 minutes and keep simmering until cooked.

Buon appetito!

Old proverbs can be a goldmine of wisdom and experience. But sometimes it's clear that they belong to a bygone era. "A rolling stone gathers no moss" is one such example. In a world that's waking up to the benefits of rest and self-care for empowerment and resilience, maybe gathering a little moss isn't such a bad thing after all. It's time to stop rolling and start resting! And if you want to create a calm and cozy sanctuary where you can find stillness, the Elba Oak Gold decor is here to help.

Nice to know

The island of Elba is probably best known for its role in history's most famous banishment: it was here that the former French emperor Napoleon spent his exile in 1814. With a population of 32,000, the island has been part of the Arcipelago Toscano National Park since 1996 and is a hotspot for tourists. Elba's landscape is characterized by oak woodland, with cork oak and holm oak being the most common species. And now you can bring Mediterranean flair into your home with the Elba Oak Gold decor.

Sustainable building

Let's pay a visit to: the Palm family
At home in: Berlin
Germany

Watch
the episode on YouTube.

At the KRONOTEX retailer MEH Parkett in Berlin, the Palm family have lots of fun choosing their flooring.

With their multi-generational home in Berlin, Constanze and Christian Palm have fulfilled a long-held dream. A teacher and a designer, the couple live with their three sons and Constanze's parents in a timber-framed new build that embodies the principles of ecological and sustainable living. And the land on which the new home stands has a precious history to the Palm family, since Constanze's grandparents once lived here too. For the family, one thing was certain: "In demolishing the old house and building our new dream home here, we wanted to design something that would serve our children in the future too."

Sustainability

As parents, we understood the importance of sustainable building. Our house is made of wood and kept warm with a heat pump. We did as much of the work as possible ourselves, and sought out eco-friendly materials for the interior construction too.

DIY

In theory, anyone can install laminate flooring. But you can't just jump right in – there are a few things you have to be aware of first. Once you've got started, progress is quick. But working in corners and around doorways takes a bit of patience, finesse and spatial reasoning.

Christian Palm

Versatility

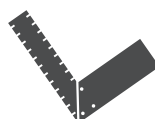

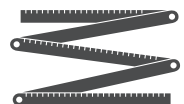

We look for materials that are low-maintenance and compatible with our young family. Our floors need to be hard-wearing, but we want them to have the feel-good factor too. When our kids run into the house from the garden, they don't always remember to take off their shoes. That's not a problem for our flooring. And with the wide variety of decors on offer, we were spoiled for choice!

The sign of the

Our decors take their inspiration from the very best of the natural world. After all, trees are the beating heart of our planet, and there's no material quite like wood. "Tell me your favorite tree and I will tell you who you are." Almost every single one of us has a favorite tree. We associate feelings, desires and characteristics with this particular tree. The most beloved species of tree around the world is undoubtedly the oak. There are over 500 species. It's no wonder that the Tree of the Year 2025 comes from the oak family: the red oak (lat. Quercus rubra).

The oak decors in our KRONOTEX collection are also among your favorite floors. That's why our new products for 2025 are all about oak: twenty-five new oak decors reveal the versatility and timeless beauty of oak-effect floors. Full of character, strength, harmony and elegance.

But although the oak is in the spotlight, we'd like to celebrate the trees and the forest itself with you. Let's stroll through the woods together and discover all the different trees.

Tip: On our website you'll find profiles of fascinating trees from all over the globe. Come with us on a journey through the woodland wonders of the world!

A close-up photograph of oak leaves and acorns, with a soft, out-of-focus background of light spots (bokeh). The leaves are in the upper left and right, while the acorns are clustered in the center. The overall color palette is muted greens and browns, with a dark, almost black background.

The oak.

The oak is a tree steeped in symbolism, as a symbol of eternity.

The Ancient Greeks believed it to be the tree of Zeus, king of the gods. And the leaves of this mystical tree were essential to the rituals of the Celts. In fact, the Celtic word "druid" is derived from "duir", meaning oak.

For the Germanic tribes, oak woodlands were a sacred place. It was here that they worshiped their gods, and felling the trees or killing animals that lived in the woods was strictly forbidden. Fast forward a few centuries to the Baroque period, and the oak was seen as a symbol of life.

In the 18th century it started to appear on coats of arms, and ever since then this mighty tree has been emblematic of liberty, pride, power and strength. And in the Romantic era, oak trees were used to symbolize hope.

Elegance Oak

How do we collectively define elegance? For starters, there is always a thread of nostalgia running through the word. Or, to put it another way, a quiet longing for timeless beauty.

The great fashion designer and icon Karl Lagerfeld once offered his take:

'Elegance has nothing to do with fashion. It's about style.'

Elegance is less an expression of fashion and the times, and much more the embodiment of unique, individual design. Elegance, we can say, doesn't follow trends. However, elegance and trends do have the potential to go hand in hand together. You can see exactly that in Elegance Oak, our decor series that elegantly pays homage to 2025's on-trend color, which has the enchanting name 'Mocha Mousse': a soft, warm, sleek brown hue that reveals itself in a multitude of nuances and shades, not least natural, beige, cream and gray tones.

An interplay of colors that allows your own style to take center stage.

The
chestnut.

Chestnuts (genus Castanea) are one of the 12 members of the beech family. Meanwhile, the horse chestnut (Aesculus) is in fact not a chestnut at all, but belongs to the soapberry family. They share a name due to the similar appearance of their fruits.

Chestnut trees are native to Southern Europe and Asia Minor. The genus Castanea was first described in 1754 by the English gardener and botanist Philip Miller, who was the chief gardener of the Chelsea Physic Garden in London. In recognition of his services to botanical science, he was appointed a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1730.

The walnut.

Our new walnut decor is inspired by the wood of its namesake, the walnut tree. The word “walnut” can be traced back to the Middle High German term welsch nuz, which was originally used to denote nuts from Wallachia, a historical region of modern-day Romania. Walnut is one of the most valuable and sought-after types of wood from the forests of Central Europe. And walnuts have long played an important role in mythology. To early civilizations, they were a symbol of fertility and represented the rank and splendor of the king. And in ancient Rome, walnuts were used in a wedding tradition of fortune-telling. The groom would throw the nuts and listen for the sound they made when they hit the floor. Only a good, clear tone meant a happy marriage.

Know your American beech from your copper beech? There are 250 kinds of beech worldwide. The dominant species in Europe is Fagus sylvatica, also known as the common beech. In the fall, their leaves turn a magnificent red. The beech is often dubbed the “mother of the forest”. A fast grower that can reach heights of up to 40 meters, it is the most common type of deciduous tree in Central Europe.

Although beeches are so widespread, they feature much less frequently in mythology than oaks, alders or linden trees. Still, they’re the clear front runner when it comes to place names. For example, Germany alone is home to 1,567 places that incorporate the German word for beech (“Buche”). The German word for book, “Buch”, also derives from this term. In a similar manner to the wax tablets used in ancient Rome, thin sheets of beechwood would be written on and bound together.

THE LARCH.

The LARCH is a member of the pine family and native to the northern hemisphere. These trees can live for up to 600 years. They are deciduous, meaning that they shed their needle-like leaves in the winter. A single tree bears both male and female cones. Known in folklore as a kindly tree that is friendly to humans, it is said to repel witches and protect against adversity. Its canopy is thought to be the home of forest fairies who keep people safe, give aid to the poor and help lost travelers find their way. To this day, the festival of Walpurgis Night is marked with the tradition of hanging larch branches on doors and windows to drive away witches. And in Austria, holy larch trees can even be found at the heart of pilgrimage sites, for example the "Maria Larch" in Innsbruck.

Larch Berlin

Stories and history

Until 2021, the 41-meter-high Burgsdorff Larch in Tegel Forest was Berlin's tallest tree. It was planted in 1795 by the botanist and forestry scientist Friedrich August Ludwig von Burgsdorff, who was Chief Forester and trusted forestry advisor to the Prussian crown. Our Larch Berlin decor is a celebration of this special tree.

Apprenticeships

at SWISS KRONO open new doors

There are some special moments in our lives that we will never forget. Many of us can still vividly remember how we felt on one particular day – the day we took our first step on a new career path.

Part of the team

Every year in early September, we celebrate this very special day – the start of the training year – with our new apprentices at SWISS KRONO in Heiligengrabe. We want our new colleagues to feel like they're part of our team from day one. After all, without up-and-coming talent, there would be no future for our company. These rising stars are the experts of tomorrow and our key to lasting success.

Personal development

This is why we invest hefty amounts of time and effort into getting the apprenticeships off to a good start. Even today, there are plenty of companies where this isn't a given – and it hasn't always been this way here either over our more than 30-year tenure at the site. But 10 years ago, we took the conscious decision to set ourselves on the right path in order to remain a highly sought-after company for budding apprentices even in times of oversupply of training places in the state of Brandenburg.

The numbers speak for themselves: with some 200 applications for our 15 apprenticeships each year, it's clear that we've set the right course.

Our training and development manager Tina Lemcke keeps a close eye on the needs of our apprentices. She is the first point of contact for young people with questions about training or vocational college.

Tina is supported in her work by a team of trainers specializing in 11 different vocational areas, some of whom are even former SWISS KRONO apprentices themselves.

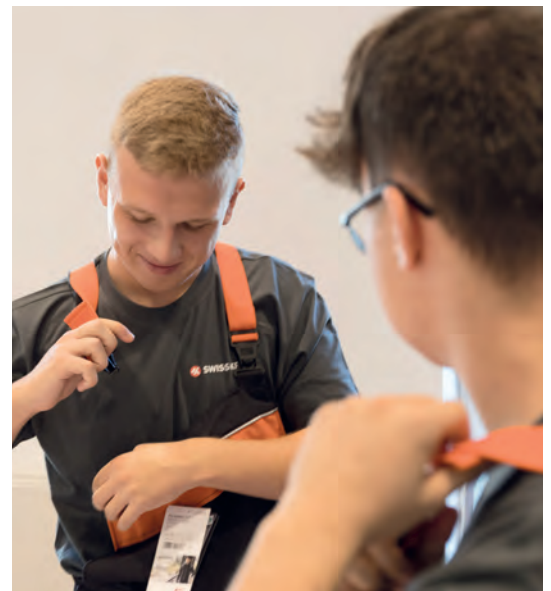

Our apprenticeships

- ✓ Electronics technician in industrial engineering
- ✓ IT specialist in systems integration
- ✓ Warehouse logistics specialist
- ✓ Warehouse specialist
- ✓ Industrial commercial clerk
- ✓ Industrial mechanic
- ✓ Agricultural and construction machinery technician
- ✓ Machine and plant operator
- ✓ Digital/print media designer
- ✓ Print media technician
- ✓ Environmental specialist in wastewater management

Tina Lemcke is our Head of Training and Development.

They can still remember exactly where they were sitting in the conference room of the visitor building on their very first day at the company – full of excitement and anticipation for the start of their new journey! The path taken by these team members over the years demonstrates what great opportunities there are at SWISS KRONO for a successful career.

HR Director Christian Baumann bids all apprentices a warm and personal welcome to SWISS KRONO.

2023 saw 18 new apprentices join our team, including Emma, Conrad and Maurice.

Conrad, age 20
Apprentice electronics technician in industrial engineering

After my year of volunteering at a daycare center in Perleberg, I decided to leave the social sector behind and seek an apprenticeship in a skilled trade. I'm fascinated by the control technology behind the complex modern systems that I will be able to help maintain at SWISS KRONO in the future.

Emma, age 19
Media design apprentice

I graduated high school in the nearby town of Wittstock and wanted to find an apprenticeship close to my home. I love taking photos and I'm a creative person. So I think that my training pathway will be fun.

Maurice, age 19
Apprentice industrial mechanic

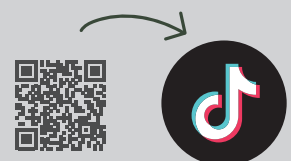

After finishing high school in my hometown of Kyritz, I decided to learn a skilled trade at SWISS KRONO. In doing so, I'm following in the footsteps of my father and grandfather. Both of them are metalworkers, and they taught me all kinds of handiwork from an early age. After completing an internship at SWISS KRONO, I decided to start my apprenticeship journey here.

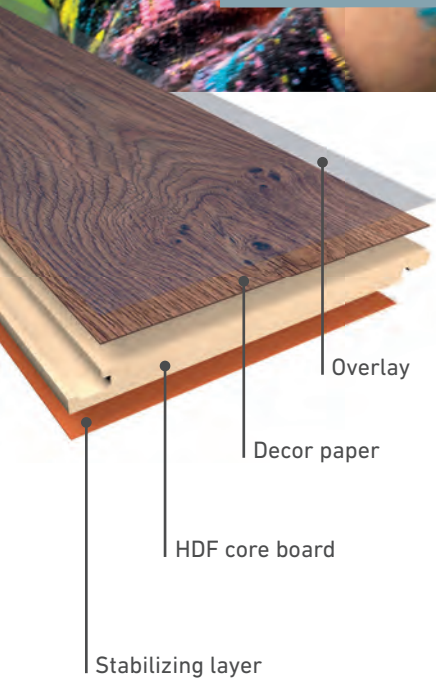

High rate of hiring

Our team of trainers guarantees individual support for each and every one of the 50 or so apprentices in Heiligengrabe. "We have clearly structured, expanded and developed our apprenticeships department. Numerous awards for the quality of our vocational training are testament to the success of our work," says HR Director Christian Baumann. Another strong marker of this success is the high rate of trainees who successfully complete their apprenticeships. Many employees who today hold middle management positions at SWISS KRONO began their time with the company as apprentices. After completing their training, they went on to obtain further qualifications and take on more responsibility. And these same opportunities are open to every single young person who completes their apprenticeship with us.

AQUA AMAZONE

THE NEW KRONOTEX COLLECTION FOR EVERYONE WHO LOVES LIFE

Like to live life in full color?

Then you need a floor that's as open to new people and new experiences as you are. You're the kind of person who likes to go with the flow – and you're not afraid to let out your wild side! You'll find a kindred spirit in the new AQUA AMAZONE collection from KRONOTEX, the highly durable flooring that resists water for up to 24 hours.

The exceptional resilience of the flooring in this collection is made possible by the newly developed, highly compressed and swelling-resistant wood fiberboard. Meanwhile, the locking edge of the innovative, patented Uniclic connection guarantees resistance to water.

IMPORTANT

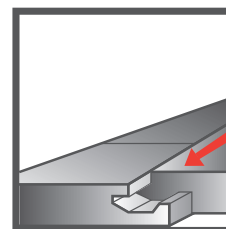

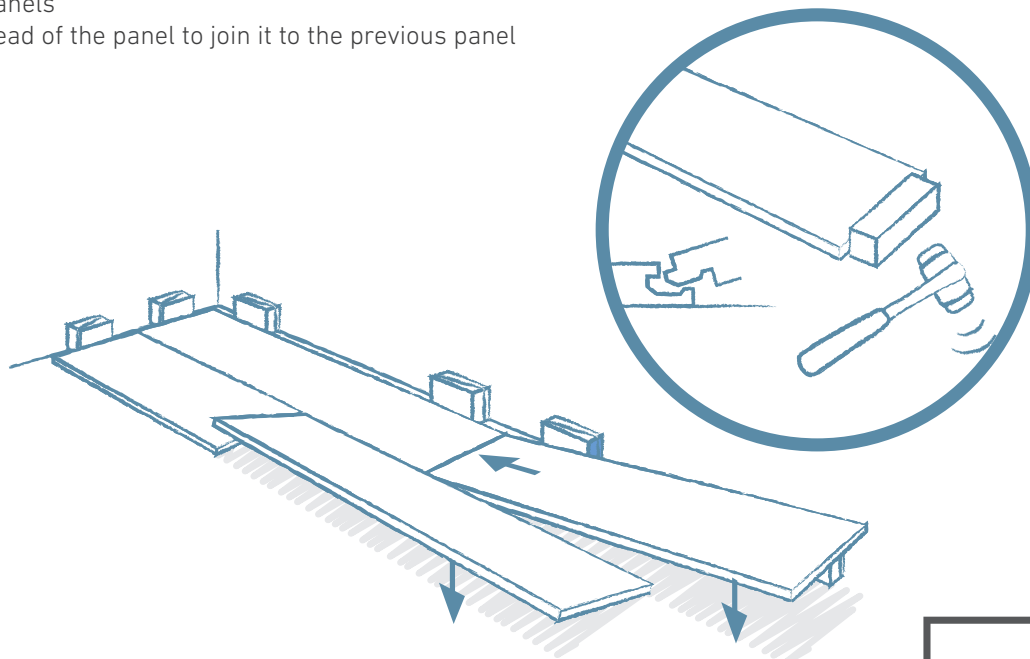

If you opt for the narrow boards from the AQUA AMAZONE collection, you'll need a hammer with a tapping block in addition to the standard tools.

How to install AQUA AMAZONE

Start: left-hand corner of the room

1. Have all the tools at the ready, including a mallet
2. Lay the panels
3. Tap the head of the panel to join it to the previous panel

UNICLIC connection

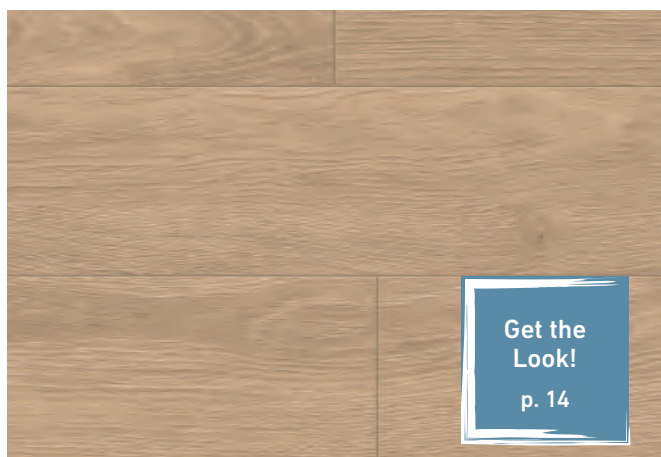

To install AQUA AMAZONE you will need:

- ✓ a pen
- ✓ a few clothes pins
- ✓ a measuring stick
- ✓ a square
- ✓ a laminate cutter or saw.
- ✓ a hammer with tapping block

Welcome home

Let's pay a visit to: the Apitz family
At home in: Liebenthal
Brandenburg, Germany

When it came to choosing the flooring for his family's new home, Kevin Apitz knew exactly what he wanted. That's because he's part of our SWISS KRONO family. Following his apprenticeship and a logistics course at technical school, he's now part of the management team at our company. And his new family home is just a stone's throw away from our factory. Kevin's partner Lisa Wenning is a teacher, and she couldn't be happier with her new countryside abode. She's put her heart and soul into decorating this family haven. And for Lisa, too, there was never any doubt that KRONOTEX flooring would be the answer. Thanks to the wealth of decor options on offer, she knew she'd be able to make the perfect choice.

Quality

Our flooring stands for quality without compromise. I know from my work just how much expertise goes into product development at SWISS KRONO and how KRONOTEX flooring is made.

Design

Creating a harmonious environment really matters to me. Kevin trusts my design decisions, and I picked out our flooring. With so many options to choose from, it wasn't an easy task. But the result is sensational!

Lisa Wenning

Liebenthal

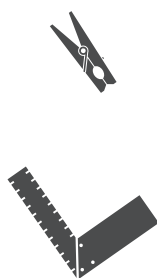

This small Brandenburg village with its romantic-sounding name is home to around 220 inhabitants. It's part of the municipality of Heiligengrabe and dates back to 1753, when it was built at the behest of Frederick the Great. The settlement was given its name to signify the hopes for its prosperous development.

DIY

Lisa opted for a HERRINGBONE floor for our open-plan living room and kitchen. I have to admit that installing the floor was a tricky job for me. But I asked my colleagues for advice before starting, and picked up a few tips on how to do things the right way.

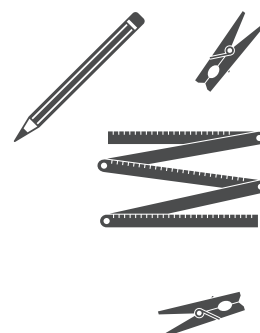

For people with a bit of DIY experience, installing herringbone flooring yourself is definitely doable. But if you're less confident then you should definitely ask a professional to fit it for you.

Kevin Apitz

Once again, you'll need:

- ✓ a pen
- ✓ a few clothes pins
- ✓ a measuring stick
- ✓ a square
- ✓ a laminate cutter or saw.

Next step: the Design Station in Wittstock/Dosse

Our cultural treasure for creative encounters

We bet you'll be a little envious of the new workplace of our Head of Marketing Antje Roder and her SWISS KRONO marketing team. Getting to work in this true gem of building culture is an enormous privilege. The former engine shed on the Wittstock/Dosse station grounds has been the new marketing center of the SWISS KRONO Group since 2023.

Our decision to use this space as our hub for marketing activities and events was made possible by the careful refurbishment carried out by the local authority that owns the building. The renovations couldn't have gone any smoother. The Design Station offers functional modernity while remaining full of historical character.

The workshop of the engine shed is now home to conference and seminar rooms. The atrium is used for events and exhibitions. The use of glass instead of brick or concrete walls gives the building an open and airy feel. The old wash hall for locomotives now houses a huge table for design samples of KRONOTEX flooring.

Here we can showcase our products to customers from all over the world in a suitably impressive setting.

The rooms previously used by station staff now function as offices for the marketing team. "Our working conditions at the Design Station are exemplary," says Head of Marketing Antje Roder. "It makes me proud that, with our Design Station, my employer SWISS KRONO is contributing to urban development in my hometown of Wittstock/Dosse. It's a shining example of sustainable commitment."

Looking for an exceptional location for your corporate event? It's a match!

Companies can hire our Design Station for events with up to 100 attendees.

Time to explore!

← Now housed in glass, the tunnel in the engine shed bears witness to the time when locomotives were repaired in this historic hall.

The huge water pump in front of the Design Station harks back to an era when trains were still powered by steam and needed vast quantities of water for cooling.

Nice to know

The history of the Design Station

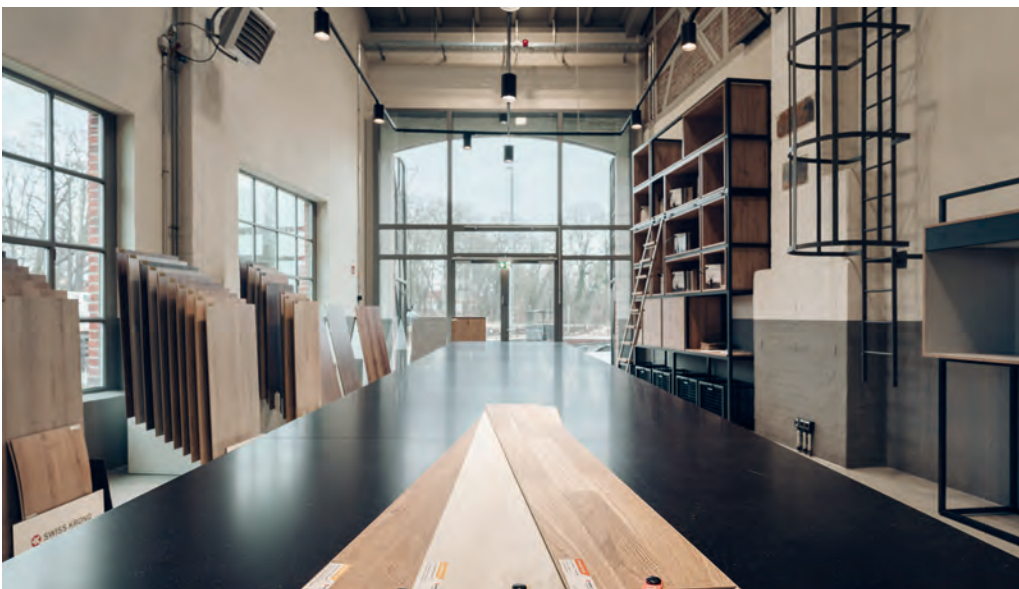

The brick building was erected on the Wittstock/Dosse railway station site around 1885. In 1910 and 1930, extensions were made to the engine shed. It consists of a single-story hall with five entrance gates, three additional halls, each with one entrance, and two extensions.

The semi-circular brick building belonged to the depot and was used for maintaining, repairing and cleaning locomotives. The engine shed had stood empty and was in urgent need of renovation since being decommissioned in 1994.

In the course of urban development work for the 2019 Brandenburg horticultural show, the town of Wittstock/Dosse acquired the buildings on the railway station site. In 2019, the SWISS KRONO Group together with the local authorities sealed a deal concerning redevelopment of the engine shed into a state-of-the-art marketing and event center.

Here in the Design Station, Jörg Moska and Antje Roder from the SWISS KRONO marketing team have the perfect setting for all sorts of marketing activities.

A huge table in the former wash hall of the engine shed is now used to show-case samples of the KRONOTEX decors.

Building a sustainable future

Innovative events for startups, investors and industry professionals

For more than three decades, our SWISS KRONO site in the German municipality of Heiligengrabe has been a hub of innovative and sustainable development. This is why we're also using the new Design Station in Wittstock/Dosse as a center of communication, inviting experts from the timber and construction industry to meet and exchange ideas.

These events link up people from all continents and create vital momentum for doing business responsibly and sustainably.

Our sustainability events include specialist lectures and keynote speeches, along with opportunities for networking.

Polar ice researcher Prof. Dirk Notz from the Hamburg Institute of Oceanography told guests all about his latest research findings on changes in polar ice.

A dazzling array of topics

The participants at our sustainability events have presented a wide range of topics. The idea of creating a central platform for the timber trade was understandably popular, while other proposals have included international data surveys on biodiversity as a basis for strategic orientation, global reforestation projects, the use of solar-powered smoke alarms as a forest fire alert, and the use of all manner of biological materials as an alternative to plastic or for the production of composite panels.

The SWISS KRONO OSB Showtainer was the perfect place for interested parties to get up close and personal with our OSB products.

Dr. Ulrike Hagemann, Director of the State Competence Center for Forestry in Eberswalde, told us how they're adapting their forest conversion strategy in the state of Brandenburg to meet the challenges of climate change.

Huge potential for savings

Not only have our innovation days covered a vast range of topics, but they have also highlighted the huge CO₂ savings potential that could be achieved from these business ideas and research projects alone. Our workshops with experts from the timber construction industry provided the figures to back up these potential savings. That is why we at SWISS KRONO are strengthening our commitment to timber construction with the production of innovative OSB boards as a second product pillar in addition to wooden floors.

Through our innovation events, we have initiated a kind of sustainability think tank that we want to continue to support and develop. You are most welcome to contribute to our pool of ideas!
